

DR SAM COLLINS

Equality advocate, executive coach and author Dr Sam Collins has dedicated her life to empowering women all over the world through a powerful mix of coaching, speaking, events and mentoring. She is the founder of Aspire for Equality where she leads the team responsible for creating events and programming designed to empower and inspire individual, organisational and social change. Today, Aspire for Equality has women and men attending events from over 80 countries and has positively influenced more than 16 million women and girls from all walks of life. The late Majesty, The Queen recognised Dr Collins for her contributions naming her "One of the Top 200 Women to Impact Business & Industry in the UK." Dr. Collins was also featured as one of the "Top 10 Coaches" by The Sunday Times, named as "A Woman Shaping the World" by CNN and "One of the Top Trailblazers in the City of London" by Brummel Magazine.

Dr Collins welcomes opportunities to share her knowledge as a coach, speaker, on podcasts and through articles. She is a leading expert on women's leadership and change with specific focus on gender intersectionality and unity of all genders for collective change. Her bestselling books, Radio Heaven: One Woman's Journey to Grace will inspire anyone who has ever been told "you can't" and her latest book Rebellious shares amazing stories of women who have made a difference around the world.

Dr Collins is known for her bold style and ability to balance logical left brain coaching techniques with the latest transrational leadership processes of visualisation, intention and scenario setting. She holds a BA in Business Studies, Master's degree in Training and Human Resource Management and a doctorate degree in Gender and Future Studies. She has studied extensively as a coach and served as global ambassador of Women for Woman International NGO empowering women survivors of war. Dr Collins has traveled extensively, working and living in the UK, USA, Canada, India, The Caribbean and Australia.

Dr Collins' new residence is in the City of London where Aspire has recently opened it's own physical space. The mission is to inspire and empower equality and work with both women and men in some of the most traditional yet influential industries in the UK and globally.
